He soon attempted to but his threat into exeguion, exclaiming from the dock, while the Court was awaiting the arrival of the prosecution:

"Some of the leading papers of America susider me the greatest fellow they have met in some time. At 80 clock last night I received a relegram which I will rend for the calification of the Court, the jury, and the American people:

I will explain that: 'Woe unto you, ye hypocrites, scribes, and Pharisees; how can youescape damnation in hell? You generation of ripers, how can you escape the damnation of the prisoner, who had given him a general history of his sarly life, which the witness recounted in a tellious manner. The witness was interrupted by Mr. Scoville with the request that all the blinds in the room be raised. Although this was done, the gloom was not dissipated to any extent, the darkness of the atternoon being so great that it was difficult for counsel to see to write. There is no way in which the court room can be inglited, and the struck back. He did not lay down like a craven, nor I don't.''

As the cross-examination of Dr. Kempster of Winnebago, Wis., was about to be resumed by Mr. Scoville, the prisoner again broke out:

"Trefer my nomination for the Presidency to enable Mr. Porter to get $5,000. The American people do not want to have me hanged. They might as well try to hang a man for killing another during the war as to hang me. My motive was patriotic, under Divine pressure, to save the nation from another war. But I am going to discuss that when we get to the jury."

The cross-examination of Dr. Kempster was then resumed, being directed chiefly to an effort to show discrepancies between the testimony of the CHIY'S GIFTS 10 THE POOR. The witness said he had made a thorough ex-soned. The druggist gave him some time water, and then telephoned to Dr. Mack, wholwas in charge at the City Hospital. Dr. Mack sent back word to have the man sent to the hospital as soon as possible. At the hospitals, Alcorn exhibited signs of arsenical polesials, and the usual antidotes were administered. The patient said he believed he had been poisoned by his wife, who, be said, had several times threatened him.

The County Physician and the Coroner were summoned. Alcorn made no anto-mortem statement under cath, but repeated the necusition against his wife. He died a few hours after being received at the hospital and his body was sent to the Morgus. Yesterday morning Constable Cary arrested Mrs. Alcorn. After being committed to jail by a Justice, she becames a nervous that the constable had been rate in her house, and she had sent to a drug store for an article called. "Rough on Rats." This, she said, she had put in some gruel and left to poison the rats. She said she never intended to poison the rats. She said she never intended to poison the rushand. She did not then know that her husband was dead now was she informed of that fact all day vesterday. She spent the day sitting quietly in her ced and held no conversation with anybody.

The post-mortem examination showed that the stomach and intestines were contracted and congested. Everything that the decrease mought might contain the poison, including the gruel that Alcorn took to the drug store, was but into a separate par and preserved.

It was sutsequently assertatined that Mrs. Alcorn was obliged to send to several druggists before she found one who would sell her the poison. An inquest will be held on Tuesday.

"We don't call the small-pox spread through New York now an epidemic, do we, Doctor?" said Dr. Janes of the Board of Health, hesitatingly, appealing to one of his oldest and most valued assistants. "Well, res, I guess we do," replied the assistant, a little more reluctantly. "Ah, well, I suppose we may, but we don't like to consider it so, and really, when you come to consider the magnitude of the population of a great city like this, it doesn't amount to much; but it is an epidemic in the sense that it is spread throughout the country just now."

PRESIDENT JAY GOULD.

"So far as New York is concerned there was a was reported in the street that President Humphreys had resigned and Jay Gould had been elected to fill the office. At first none of the directors would confirm or deny the report, but when it became apparent that the cat was out of the bar, a consultation was held by the few who remained down town, which resulted in a decision to remove the piedge of secrecy. Doubtless the recent reports of a disagreement between President Humphreys and Mr. Gould were taken into consideration in forming the decision that an official statement was desirable. Upon this point Mr. Humphreys, after admitting that he had tendered his resignation as President said:

"There has been no disagreement between Mr. Gould and myself. I have not resigned as director, nor have I any intention of so doing. I was to-day made Chairman of the Executive Committee. The Board is and always has been, entirely harmonious, and there has been no foundation for the reports of late to the contrary. I have worked very hardfor the last four years to perfect the Wabash system, in cooperation with my associates in the Board, and the time has come for retief to me from the great care and responsibility as executive of over 3,600 mites of railroad, which we will have when the roads now in process of construction, and which are nearly completed, are finished.

"We have regarded it as of great importance to reach the great centre of traffic in the West and Southwest. We are now in Indianapolis, Cairo, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Omaha, Des Moines, Burlington, Quincy, Hannibal, Peoria, and other important points with the shortest and most direct lines to Chicago, Toledo, and Detroit, with steel rails on all the main lines. So far as contemplated by the management, the system will be completed with the flushing of the roads now in course of construction.

"I have the greatest confidence in the future distinct beginning to the present small-pox epidemic in October, 1880, when a commercial

IMPORTANT TO MOTHERS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYEUP is the only thing that mothers can rely upon for their children. It corrects acidity of the stomach, cures wind colic, regulates the bowels, and gives rest, health, and comfort to mother and chilt. During the process of teething its value is incalculable. It settens the gums, reduces inflamination, and allays all pain, thereby giving rest to the child and comfort to the mother. Twenty-five cents
